

The thesis „Negative influence of television broadcasts on child's development" describes interaction between the media and its audience. It examines the possibilities of aggressive behavior generation on basis of TV viewing. The thesis concerns differences of influence of TV viewing on each period of child's development. The research looks for the dependencies between the time spent with TV viewing, the type of favorite program, communication with parents and resulting violence perception.